Sun Completes First Year Under New Management

This issue marks the Sun's first anniversary under new direction. We have survived. We have learned. We have improved. And we hope to continue learning and improving so that we can provide our community with the kind of high quality newspaper it deserves.

We thank the community for its support and encouragement during this first year, and our staff for its dedication to serving the community through publication of this newspaper.

Starting with twelve pages per issue a year ago, we increased to sixteen pages and will soon go up to twenty. We have sought to improve the content of the paper -- to make the Sun essential reading for anyone interested in what is happening in our Valley.

A year ago, we started with a circulation of 6,000. We first improved the efficiency of the distribution, then increased to 7,000 and will soon increase to 8,000 circulation. An improved paper attracts more readers, but more pages and wider circulation adds to costs.

Happily, advertising revenues have also improved enough to keep the creditors at bay. We need additional revenue, however, to pay for the further improvements we have in mind. Anyone interested in helping with advertising sales should please contact us.

Again, thank you for your support. The staff of the Sun appreciates the opportunity to serve you.

Leadership Crisis At Hidden Valley

By Dick Heuer

"Hidden Valley may have to die before there can be a rebirth of this wonderful institution," according to Anne McGowan. McGowan was President of Hidden Valley Music Seminars Board of Trustees until she and five other trustees resigned on October 31.

Leadership turmoil is not new to the local music institute. The Hidden Valley Board of Trustees has been beset by repeated waves of resignations over the past dozen years.

Past trustees say the problem has always been the same: the alleged financial mismanagement by Hidden Valley founder and chief executive officer, Peter Meckel. The issue that has divided the trustees for at least a dozen years: should Meckel, the creative genius behind Hidden Valley, be allowed to stay or forced to resign?

In April of this year, McGowan announced a plan to hire a new executive director while retaining Meckel's artistic talents as program coordinator. Meckel refused to subordinate himself to a new director, however.

Subsequently, the board decided to replace Meckel. A search committee selected a new executive director and donors agreed to rescue Hidden Valley from its financial troubles, but all was conditional upon Meckel's departure. Meckel refused to leave voluntarily.

When the board of trustees then split on firing Meckel, McGowan resigned. She was followed by trustees Beata LaGarde, Dick Lee, Sue Dewar, Dr. Larry Tobin and Alexander Saurensen. The only Peninsula resident remaining on the board is George Brook-Kothlow. There are four out-of-town trustees.

According to Dale Eberly, recent events are an exact repetition of events that occurred in 1979 when he was President of the Board of Trustees.

At that time, the board wanted to hire someone over Meckel to gain better control over finances. Meckel refused to accept this and also refused to resign. When the board backtracked on forcing Meckel's departure, Eberly and four other trustees resigned. No press announcement was made at that time for fear of damaging the Hidden Valley program.

Similar resignations occurred after charges of financial mismanagement in 1976 and in the early 1980s.

In explaining the recent resignations, McGowan said, "We feel we cannot fulfill our fiduciary responsibility as trustees as long as Peter Meckel is in charge of Hidden Valley. We remain committed to the goals of Hidden Valley, but until Meckel leaves, we cannot have our names associated with it."

Cachagua Plan Drafted

The draft Cachagua Area Plan was scheduled for completion and approval last Monday evening after a year's work by a citizens advisory committee. The draft plan, which is one of eight area plans covering all of Monterey County, sets the goals and policies that will determine future land use planning in Cachagua.

According to Charity Crane, who chaired the citizens advisory committee that drafted the plan, "this is an environmental plan. It was prepared by volunteers who live in the area and realize its environmental sensitivity."

The plan encourages protection of the rural environment and agriculture. It recognizes that vineyards are a relatively new agricultural use and encourages them to the extent that water is available. Tourism is discouraged.

Commercial development that attracts people from outside the area is discouraged. Commercial development serving the needs of local residents is permitted. Retreats and commercial bed and breakfast uses are allowed. Industrial land uses are not permitted unless they are related to agriculture.

Cottage shop industry, which is defined as small scale manufacturing of artistic or craft items, is encouraged as a traditional activity in the area. It will be treated as an appropriate home occupation and not be restricted to areas designated for commercial uses.

The plan recognizes existing commercial uses at Prince's Camp and Jensen's Camp. It designates general locations for future commercial development at Jamesburg, on Tassajara Road near the old Lambert Ranch house, and at the intersection of Cachagua and Nason Roads. All commercial development must be within one half mile of these locations.

One of the more controversial policies in the plan discourages development of trails on private land, outside the national forest. Such trails are viewed as a fire hazard in an area that is extremely vulnerable to forest and range fires. They also have negative impacts from traffic, parking and litter.

No major road improvements are planned for the foreseeable future. The slow growth anticipated in Cachagua is not expected to require such improvements. There is a provision for an advisory vote on formation of an assessment district to fund improvements to the unpaved portion of Tassajara Road.

There are now about 301 legal dwelling units in Cachagua with a population of 729. It has been one of the slowest growing areas in the county during the past ten years, and this slow pace of growth is expected to continue.

The Annual Carmel Valley Village Halloween Parade was, as always, a tremendous success! From the moment the familiar fire truck turned into Delfino Place, the Sun photographer snapped pictures of assorted spiders, a variety of clowns, punk rockers, witches, Indians, and unidentified green things. Kids of all ages joined in the fun.

Save Our Schools

In a few weeks, the Controller of the State of California will mail some 12 million rebate checks to eligible Californians, ranging from $32 to $236. This money is state tax dollars you paid in 1987.

Prior to taking action to rebate these funds, the Governor and the Legislature debated what to do with it. These funds could very well have assisted our local schools which are in dire need of direct assistance. As California continues to grow, our support for education, at all levels, must continue to grow as well. Otherwise, we will find ourselves with a generation of young people ill prepared to meet the challenges of the turn of the century work place and national and international market place.

However, the California Constitution now contains an awkward formula (the so-called Gann Limit) which prohibits the State from spending funds beyond a certain limit, regardless of need.

Since the money is being sent back, you now have the power to decide where to use it. If you keep it (and itemized your last income tax return), then the Federal government will count it as income and tax you. However, if you donate the rebate to a foundation, then it can be counted as a charitable contribution.

I want my tax dollars to stay here in the Monterey Bay area, to benefit our local schools. That is why I am urging everyone to join me in endorsing their rebate checks to the public school of their choice. A list of public schools foundations is available by calling my office, 646-1980.

California's future depends on the success of our schools. The success of our schools depends on you.

Thank you for your taking time to read this. Now, please take the time to assist our schools.

Ballroom Dancing

We would like to express our appreciation to Walter and Deborah White who teach ballroom dancing at the Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley.

Learning to dance can be very difficult and anxiety producing for many people. However, this couple is extremely gifted in providing the necessary structure as well as providing a safe and non-judgmental atmosphere in which to learn the skills.

Deborah and Walter are enthusiastic teachers who work well together as a couple to help the students have an enjoyable and successful experience with dancing. They are attentive to individual needs and give constructive feedback in a positive manner. In addition to this, the Whites are excellent dancers who are a delight to watch. It is rare to find this combination of competencies in both dancing and teaching others to dance.

We thank Deborah and Walter White for their time, energy, and talent, and we are pleased that Hidden Valley Music Seminars is offering this high quality dance program to members of the community at a very reasonable cost. We highly recommend it as an avenue for recreation and personal growth.

Bikers Ban

Fellow hikers and environmental elitists, come join with me in praising the environmental purity of those members of the regional park board who voted to ban those impertinent intruders with their mountain bikes from Garland Park. The nerve of these cyclists infringing on our pristine reserve. Don't they realize that Garland Park was purchased for the exclusive pleasure of us hikers and nature lovers?

But let us not feel too smug over our victory because those determined cyclists just might pool their resources and hire an attorney to challenge the legality of such a ban. Forgive me for dwelling on such negative thoughts because, traditionally, trails were set aside for the exclusive use of hikers and equestrians, so we shall prevail.

Another thing we must be on guard for that might weaken the board members' resolve is an insidious proposal by the bikers that a few days a week be set aside for the use of bikers under the guise of fairplay. Fellow hikers and trail traditionalists, we must alert the board to the ploy and insist that they stand by their total ban.

Speaking of bans, isn't it time the board extend its ban to include all nuisance or destructive uses of the trails? I feel compelled to inform the board about the incompatibility of horses and ideal trails. The truth is that those trail fouling, four legged soil grinders are ruining our trails. Therefore, I recommend that the board reconvene and vote to protect our fragile trail system by banning horses also.

Save The Upper Valley

Since my parrot died and fish became too expensive to wrap, I've had very little need for that publication of pomp, publicity and pretense from down the valley.

The Sun is fulfilling every need I have for news of the upper valley.

For years I have believed that Robinson Canyon was the entrance to Carmel Valley. There is a change in scenery, climate and people at that point.

A couple of days ago, I took a drive down to the Rancho Shopping Center and took time to observe what has happened and is happening. The hills to the South are being butchered with no regard to the geology of the area, I looked at the simulated English manor houses the pseudo French chateau and other out of place edifices and came to one conclusion — nothing in the lower valley is left that is worth saving. We've got to expend our limited resources and influence in saving the upper valley.

Annual Hospice Tree Lighting

Panetta to Speak at Ceremony

The Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula will hold its annual Tree Lighting Ceremony on Monday, November 30 at 5 p.m. at Portola Plaza, Monterey. Congressman Leon Panetta is the honorary Chair.

You can honor or memorialize a loved one by donating a $10 gift to Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. Each $10 gift shines a light in the name of your loved one when the tree is lit on top of the Sheraton Hotel in Monterey. Your loved one's name is also placed in the Tree of Life Memory book, which remains in the Sheraton's lobby throughout the holiday season.

There will be Christmas carols, and Congressman Panetta will deliver a holiday message.

An informal dinner follows the ceremony at Ferrante's Restaurant at $15 per person. For dinner reservations, donation envelopes or just more information, call the Hospice Development Office at 372-6565.

St. Dunstan's Annual Holiday Bazaar

Shop early for the Christmas Holiday Season! St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church, will hold its annual Holiday Bazaar on Saturday, November 14, from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The theme this year will be Pennsylvania Dutch. This event is sponsored by the St. Martha's Guild and raises funds for local community outreach.

There will be homemade cookies, jams, jellies, chutneys, breads, Christmas decorations, hand-knits, toys, fresh produce. Lunch served from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

For further information, call 659-4097.

Bloodmobile At Community Chapel

The Red Cross and CHOMP will sponsor a bloodmobile at the CV Community Chapel, Paso Hondo & Village Drive on November 12 from 3 to 6:30 p.m.

Adults ages 17 through 65 who weigh at least 110 pounds are eligible donors (over 65 with Doctor's written permission). Blood collected goes to the Community Hospital.

On the national average, only 6 percent of the eligible donors give blood on a regular basis; 16 percent donate blood once a year, and 78 percent never donate.

Blood is urgently needed. The time to give is before an emergency arises. For more information, please call, 659-2374, or the Red Cross.

Robert Louis Stevenson Unbirthday To Be Celebrated

On November 13th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Robert Louis Stevenson's birthday will be celebrated. An open house with refreshments served will occur at the Stevenson House, 531 Houston Street, Monterey, between Webster and Pearl.

In 1891, Stevenson legally gave his November birthday to his young friend, Annie Ide, as her birthday was Christmas Day. Annie thereafter celebrated November 13th as her day and adopted the middle name of Louisa.

Each year local residents and visiting school children keep the festival by celebrating with a cake and refreshments. Come join the California Department of Parks and Recreation, Old Monterey Preservation Society and the children in saying Happy Unbirthday.

For more information please contact Monterey State Historic Park at 649-7118.

Village Plan Committee Discusses Street Lighting

Few Attend as Committee Seeks Guidance for Village's Future

Fewer than half a dozen people attended the November 3 meeting of the Carmel Valley Village Master Plan Committee as it struggled to hammer out a set of acceptable lighting standards to be eventually implemented into the Carmel Valley Master Plan. The November 3 meeting was continued from the Committee's October public meeting.

After reviewing previous discussions on building setbacks, the Committee agreed that a minimum setback of fifty feet from the center of Carmel Valley Road and other streets in the Village is acceptable. Noting that the County has a sixty foot right of way extending thirty feet in both directions from the center line of the road, the Committee recommended that another twenty foot minimum be required for pedestrian pathways and landscaping.

Committee member Peter Coakley noted that the Committee recommended parallel parking instead of head-in parking. "This Committee is concerned because head-in parking makes a driver back into oncoming traffic, thus increasing the possibility of accidents," he said.

The Committee then jumped into what has long been a controversial subject here in Carmel Valley Village — lighting.

Walkway/Driveway Lights

The Committee recommended that down shaded or recessed lighting be used on walkways and driveways. The Committee also recommended no bare bulbs, with low voltage a desirable option.

The degree of wattage to be used was debated between Jack Arnold, representing the Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee, and Roger Williams of the Master Plan Committee. Williams responded to Arnold's suggestions that wattage be controlled by insisting that wattage per se did not count; rather, the lumens decided how bright a light would be. According to Webster, a lumen is a unit of luminous flux equal to the light emitted in a unit solid angle by a uniform point source of one candle intensity. Williams' pointed out that putting wattage limits on lights does nothing to regulate the intensity of the light.

"If you specify 75 watts as the ideal," Williams said, "you are encouraging people to install bare bulb 75 watt lights which are equal to 150 watts."

Calling floodlights and spotlights "the most offensive things we have in the Village," Arnold asked the Committee "shoot for a goal, so that anything outside of that goal must come before the Committee."

After considerable discussion, the Committee agreed with the stipulations of the Del Monte Forest Master Plan's section on lighting read by Committee member Randy Randazzo. In effect, the Del Monte Forest plan forbids any exterior lighting that is "overly visible" from a neighbor's property or that has "visual impact" on traffic.

Security Lighting

There are two types of security lighting in the Village: lights attached to the building, and lights away from the building.

Randazzo said that, "The Committee had a problem with this. We decided that security is one issue, and a security light attached to the building is another issue."

Randazzo said that lights attached under the eaves of the buildings were "not ob-

CVCYC Offers Babysitting And Holiday Craft Classes

The Carmel Valley Community Youth Center is offering a late fall program schedule consisting of Holiday Craft Workshops for children and adults and a Safe Sitter workshop for teens.

The Safe Sitter Workshop is four hours long and geared toward youngsters who are interested in being confident and responsible babysitters. Captain Sidney Reade of the Mid Valley Fire Department will train teens who are 12 years old or older on how to prevent emergency situations, and how to report and handle emergencies. She will teach the following: mouth-to-mouth resuscitation; how to stop bleeding; what to do after you've called 911; how to bathe a small child safely, and much more. The Safe Sitter Workshop will be held on Saturday, November 28 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center Activity House. Pre-registration is necessary and there is no fee for this class.

The Holiday Craft Workshop, taught by Louise Miller, for teens and adults will create "nature wreaths" and Christmas ornaments. The wreaths will be decorated with dried flowers, herbs, seed pods, and plants appropriate to the holiday season. Christmas ornaments will be created from pine cones, felt hearts, and potpourri balls. The Holiday Craft Workshop will be held on Saturday, November 14 and Saturday, November 21 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon in the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center main building. Class fee is $15 for Community Youth Center members and $20 for non-members. In addition there is a $8 materials fee.

Santa's Workshop is specially designed for children 6 to 11 years old to make Christmas gifts for people they love. Louise Miller will show the children how to make stationery, door decorations, framed pictures and ornaments using fabrics, paints, pine cones, and more. Santa's Workshop will be held on Saturday, December 5 from 10 a.m. until 12 noon in the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center main building. Class fee is $10 for Community Youth Center members, $15 for non-members and the cost of materials is included in the class fee.

For further information on any of these workshops please phone 659-3983, 9 a.m. to 12 noon, Monday through Friday.

Video Review

Courtesy of Valley Video

There are some excellent videos on the shelves of your favorite video store this month. We particularly enjoyed Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home for a number of reasons. First, this probably is the last time we'll see Captain Kirk, Mr. Spock, Dr. McCoy, Lieutenant Uhura, Sulu, Chekhov, and Scottie together in a Star Trek film. Second, many of the scenes were shot at the Monterey Bay Aquarium, making the film particularly attractive to Peninsula residents. Three, the environmental message is urgent and very well done. In addition to the regulars in the film, Catherine Hicks also stars as Dr. Gillian Taylor, a contemporary marine biologist who becomes involved with the Enterprise's crew as they embark on a mission that may bring this planet back from the edge of destruction. Leonard Nimoy directed Star Trek IV, and his special talents made it a blockbuster motion picture. Rated PG — Don't miss this one!

An American Tail is Steven Spielberg's first animated feature movie. The story takes place a hundred years ago when a family of mice journey from Czarist Russia to America to find a better way of life. This is a heartwarming film that became the highest grossing animated film of all time upon its initial theatrical release. Rated G. This is great for the kids.

Speaking of animation, don't forget to see or see again Lady and the Tramp, a Walt Disney film that has touched the hearts of Americans since 1955. Here's another great film for children of all ages. Rated G. You'll love it!

For those readers who wouldn't miss Danny DeVito and/or Richard Dreyfuss, Tin Men was released for video on October 27. The pair star as aluminum siding salesmen (thus the title) who become bitter rivals after a minor fender bender with each other's Cadillacs. Also in the film is Barbara Hershey. If this is your bag, drop by and pick up the film. Rated R.

For VideoViewers who are waiting to see the 1986 Academy Award winning picture Platoon, you'll have to be patient for a bit longer. The release of the video has been delayed — hopefully not for too long — because of litigation. We'll keep you posted.

Also released in October...Open House (PG) starring Joseph Bottoms and Adrienne Barbeau; Yellow Submarine (G) starring The Beatles; Lethal Weapon (R) starring Mel Gibson and Danny Glover; Malone (R) starring Burt Reynolds, and 84 Charing Cross Road (PG) starring Anne Bancroft and Anthony Hopkins.

We'll report on some of these new releases next time.

Buddy Program Offices Moved

The Buddy Program of the Monterey Peninsula announces the relocation of its administrative offices to 1340 Munras Avenue, Suite 207, Monterey.

The Buddy Program is a child companionship agency matching children, aged 6 to 16, from single-parent families with adult volunteers on a one-to-one basis. Men and women over the age of twenty make a commitment to spend four hours a week for at least six months as "Big Buddies" to children in need.

The Buddy Program serves all communities on the Monterey Peninsula. According to Administrative Director Cindy Joerger, a large number of female Big Buddies are ready and waiting eagerly to be matched, so young girls are particularly encouraged to apply at this time.

For information, call 649-0276.

Fire Safety

Tips On Home Heating

Temperatures are beginning to fall in Carmel Valley, and families are preparing their homes for the winter chill. Winter time poses more threat than its chill; in fact, winter is a serious fire season.

Homes are heated in many ways. In addition to mechanical furnaces, we use portable space heaters, kerosene heaters, wood stoves, inserts, and fireplaces. All of these supplemental heat measures may be acceptable, but they also are a major factor in residential fires. As a matter of fact, heating is the number one cause of residential fires in the United States. Like most fires, fires caused by home heating can be prevented, and the following safety tips can help you maintain a fire safe home this winter:

FURNACE HEATING

It is important to have your furnace inspected to insure that it is in good working condition. Be sure all furnace controls and emergency shutoffs work properly. Leave furnace repairs to qualified specialists; Do not attempt repairs yourself, unless you are qualified. Inspect walls and ceilings near the furnace and along the flue line. If the wall is hot or discolored, additional clearance or insulation is needed. Check the flue pipe for holes or cracks. Soot along or around seams may indicate a leak. Keep trash and combustibles away from the heating system.

PORTABLE SPACE HEATERS

Use only U.L. (Underwriter Laboratories) listed appliances. Inspect heater and controls for proper working condition. Inspect cord for any damage. DO NOT USE damaged electrical heaters. When using electric heaters, do not overload circuits. Use only those extension cords that have the necessary rating to carry the amp load for that appliance. Avoid using electric space heaters in bathrooms or other areas where they may come in contact with water. Space heaters should always be placed a safe distance away from curtains, bedspreads, tablecloths, furniture, wall coverings, etc. Keep young children safely away from space heaters, especially when they are wearing nightclothes or other loose clothing that can be easily ignited.

PORTABLE KEROSENE HEATERS

The Use of any type of unvented fuel-fired space heater is illegal inside dwelling areas in California. It is illegal to sell any unvented fuel-fired space heater designed or intended for use in homes.

(Health and Safety Code Section 19881) As a result of the California law banning the sale of portable (unvented) kerosene heaters for use in the home, many manufacturers and retailers have changed their advertising to uses such as camping, workshop, industry, emergency preparedness, etc., and are still offering these heaters for sale. These heaters are being used in homes, and because of this, it is very important to make the public aware of the hazards they present.

Although most portable kerosene heaters are U.L. listed and appear to operate in a reasonably safe manner, they still represent a number of serious problems. These heaters use room air for combustion. If they are used in a tightly sealed area (doors and windows closed) that does not allow outside air to come in, the heater will use up the available oxygen and produce carbon monoxide, a colorless, odorless, tasteless gas. Even small amounts of carbon monoxide can be fatal. If the heater is not in proper working condition, it will produce heavy carbon and deadly fumes. Storage of kerosene for refueling can present a serious fire danger as well. Safety features to look for on portable kerosene heaters are: A drip tray at the base to trap kerosene spills; a low gravity center for stability; a tip-over sensor that stops fuel flow and extinguishes the flame; protective guards around hot areas of the heater; sturdy fuel tank with no more than two gallon capacity; fuel gauge to prevent overfilling; and controls that are easy to understand and use.

Operational considerations for kerosene heaters: Always provide a source of outside air in the room where the heater is being operated (open a window). Do not place the heater near combustible items such as furniture, curtains, bedding, wall coverings, etc.; the hot surfaces of these units are a SEVERE hazard to small children. In addition to the possibility of burns from touching hot surfaces, there is the danger of clothing catching on fire if the child stands too close to the heater. Refueling should not be attempted if the heater is hot, and only low sulphur kerosene, grade #1-k, is considered safe for use in portable kerosene heaters. Refueling should be done in a well-vented area and according to manufacturer's instructions. Store kerosene in approved containers only, away from heat sources and in a well vented area outside the home. Maintenance is critical to continued safe operation of kerosene heaters. Make sure the manufacturer's instructions are followed and that they are kept handy for ready reference.

WOODSTOVES AND FIREPLACES

Woodstoves and fireplaces are common heat sources in the home. To use them safely, be sure the stove or fireplace is installed properly. Woodstoves should have adequate clearance from combustible surfaces (36") and proper floor support and protection. Woodstoves should be of good quality, solid construction and design, and should be U.L. listed. Woodstove and fireplace chimneys SHOULD BE INSPECTED ANNUALLY and cleaned, if needed, especially if the unit has not been used for some time. DO NOT use flammable liquids to start or accelerate any fire. DO NOT use excessive amounts of paper to build a roaring fire. It is possible to ignite creosote in the chimney by over building the fire. Keep a glass or metal screen in front of the fireplace opening at all times to prevent embers or sparks from jumping out. Never burn charcoal indoors because it can give off lethal amounts of carbon monoxide. Keep flammable materials away from your mantle. NEVER CLOSE YOUR DAMPER with fire or hot ashes in the fireplace. A closed damper will help the fire heat up again and will force toxic carbon monoxide into the house. If synthetic logs are used, follow the directions on the package. Never break a synthetic log apart to quicken the fire, or use more than one log at a time. They often burn unevenly, releasing higher levels of carbon monoxide.

OTHER SAFETY TIPS

Never discard ashes inside or near the home. Place them in a metal container outside and well away from combustibles. Never use a range or oven as a supplementary heating device. It is a safety hazard and can produce toxic fumes. Be sure every level of your home has a working smoke detector, and be sure to check and clean it periodically. If windows are used as emergency exits in your home, practice using them to be sure that they open easily. Wood can swell during the rainy season and make it more difficult to open windows.

Valley People

By Grace Darcy

New business ventures are always exciting, perhaps even more so when two lively ladies like ADINA GARZAPINO and JOY MARSHAK decide to join talents. The two women will operate from in Dr. Ed Marcucci's building at #6 Village Drive. The business, called Adina's and Joy's Hair and Body Works, is a full service salon where visitors may have pedicures, manicures, haircuts, permanents, massage, and just about everything to make you feel and look good! Lot's of luck to JOY and ADINA in their new venture. Be sure to drop by and say "hello"...Another new venture is Blake's Bookshop at the Crossroads. Owned by MARSHA BLAKE, the shop was conceived and developed over the past three years. Blake's Bookshop is an ideal place to browse and relax in a comfortable atmosphere, complete with marble fireplace. The bookshop stocks a complete inventory of books in all categories, including a large selection of cookbooks, books on art and photography, and children's books. MARSHA invites youngsters and their parents to attend the Saturday puppet shows at the bookshop, scheduled to be announced. Good wishes to MARSHA BLAKE and her new venture.

Reunions are always fun, but a recent reunion of Empehi graduates right here in Carmel Valley outdid them all... Classmates from as far as Charlotte, NC and Mexico City arrived for a four day celebration. This reunion was unique because Empehi (Morgan Park High School) is located in Chicago, Illinois! LEE and VALERIE MINK, and RON and JUNE LEVORA were the local organizers, and CV put it's best foot forward with weather and activities to please them all!

The Halloween Parade in the Village was its usual success, but getting bigger every year. This year, we thought we saw more adults than usual, but then kids come in all ages...some grown-ups we spotted (and recognized — lots were in costume) were RICHARD ROSENTHAL, GAY BROWN, KAY and KIM SPINDLER, and LINDA OLIVIER, and observers JIM

CORSO, FRANK QUILTY, and MARVIN GOLDSTEIN. Everyone had a grand time!

The Village Players' production of Annie is still at Hidden Valley, so get your tickets today. All proceeds benefit the Jamesburg School, and you'll see lots of cute little "orphans" along with Annie herself (MICHELLE PREJEAN).

BARBARA HOLINE of Carmel Valley visited the Commission on the Status of Women recently bringing an up to date report on the CUSD Child Development Center at Carmelo School along with a wish list. The Commissioners promised to help, and maybe you can, too. The Center needs rocking chairs, couches, overstuffed chairs, bean bags, puzzles, games, books, dress-up clothes, hats, costume jewelry, records and a record player, bookshelves, button collections, etc. For more information, please call Center Director WENDY BANKS at 624-8047. Thanks, BARBARA HOLINE, for letting us know the need.

ILLIA THOMPSON, author and educator, is conducting a Journal Writing Workshop this coming Saturday in the Bingham Room at Sunset Center from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. ILLIA recently published her lovely book, Moments, a copy of which is part of the Workshop package along with a blank journal and lunch. If you would like to attend, call ILLIA at 659-5210.

It was nice to see HAROLD and GAIL OLSEN having lunch at Shelly's Kitchen recently...HAROLD owns Valley Plastering in the Village, but the couple recently moved into town...at least they are with us during the week.

Until next time...

Delicious French Cuisine In Carmel Valley

Mother/Daughter Team Provide Culinary Delights That Pique the Palate

By Grace Darcy

In the Valley Hills Center, there is a lovely little restaurant operated in the finest traditions of French cookery. Called Coco La Fleur, the restaurant is owned and operated by Ann and Paola Berthoin, a mother/daughter team of extraordinary culinary talent. Recently, Paola took third place in Monterey Life magazine's Best of Desserts Competition.

Their journey to Carmel Valley was circuitous. Born in New York City, Ann, at the appropriate age, married a Frenchman, a civil servant. The couple lived in France, Luxembourg, and England. "We did a great deal of entertaining," Ann remembered, "and I didn't mind because I loved to cook."

Unfortunately, the marriage failed, and after the divorce in England, Ann came to the United States with her four children. She taught French for fourteen years and headed the French Department at Santa Catalina School. She also taught at All Saints Day School, York School, and Carmel High School. She still teaches French occasionally to "people who want to learn."

Despite her linguistic talents, Ann, a delightful, friendly woman with the brightest of blue eyes, wanted to "do something" with her daughter, Paola, and thus Coco La Fleur was born.

"We have no desire to get 'big,'" Ann said. "We want to stay small — that is our uniqueness. We want real quality, and, too, it's nice to get to know the people who patronize us."

Ann concedes that she is not working any less at Coco La Fleur than when she was teaching, but now she has her own business and that makes a difference.

"It seems as if we're working ten days a week," Paola groaned good naturedly, but she, too, is doing something she enjoys very much. Three years ago, Paola, a slim, dark-haired young woman, worked at Picasso's in The Barnyard. "Like mother, I always liked to cook. I enjoyed making cakes at Picasso's, and while working there, I realized how much I truly enjoyed cooking. I began coming up with my own recipes, and people liked them."

Paola has no formal training in cooking, and although she agrees that "formal training helps," she also believes it can be stunting "because your product looks and tastes like everyone else's."

Paola attended the California College of Arts and Crafts where she studied etching, lithography, and mono printing. She loves to draw and, according to Ann, works in colors and shapes rather than in words.

"I like where we are and how we've chosen to do business," Paola said. "When I do a cake for a person, for instance, it is for that particular person, no one else. No place that I know of does this. At other places, such a cake would be more of a production item, and would lose its personality."

Coco La Fleur serves dinners twice a week, on Fridays and Saturdays. "We do private dinners on Wednesdays and Thursdays for parties of six people or more," Ann said. "Private parties have the entire dining room to themselves plus any menu they want."

"We keep records of our clients and give them something special and exciting each time they dine here," Ann said.

They have refined their operation to the degree that they are limited on time. "We cannot cook during the day and then serve dinners every night," Ann said.

Paola agreed. "If you cook for dinner each night, you can't do individual things."

The women work sixteen hours a day. They have one employee who helps serve, set the tables, and clean up. Everything else is up to Ann and Paola.

Because of their high standards, everything is cooked from scratch. "Nothing comes out of boxes," Ann explained, "and all of our vegetables are fresh." She considers vegetables as important as meat and fish, and both women look forward to finding the time one day to grow their own vegetables.

They are aficionados of wine, and offer a small wine list replete with wines chosen to go with the food they serve. The house specialty is fresh Maine Lobster broiled with Cognac and drawn butter.

"When someone calls and tells us they want to come to dinner, they tell us what they want right then and there," Ann said.

"They have a choice of three entrees, each of which has three vegetables chosen to complement the entree."

"It's like having dinner at home without all the work, and it's less expensive than when we cater," Paola said.

Catering is an important part of Coco La Fleur's business, and both women enjoy doing it. "Often, we prepare the dishes here and the client picks them up; otherwise, we close the restaurant and go to the client's home," Ann said.

The women recalled an "enormous golf ball cake" Paola fashioned for a client's birthday. "It looked exactly like a 20 pound golf ball, and the client was delighted," Ann said.

"There's nothing I don't like to cook," Ann said. "I don't cook a great deal of fish because we can't always find really fresh fish. The veal and lamb we use is from animals who are raised in the fields with their mothers — no hormones, no antibiotics."

"Most of the recipes we've worked out ourselves come from eating in other countries," Paola said. "They are our own combination of ingredients, spices, etc."

Each month, Coco La Fleur publishes a dinner schedule and a take out menu. This gourmet menu includes such palate tickling specialties as Nippy Corn Soup, Just Peachy Chicken, Shrimp Salad Oleron, Moussaka, Honey Orange Game Hen, Aubergine Provencale, Gratin Dauphinoise, Petit Cassoulet Toulousain, Roast Shoulder of Lamb, Vichyssoise, Chicken Pithiviers, Ratatouille, and on and on deliciously.

Ann's and Paola's knowledge of food is awesome. They know instinctively what goes with what. "Thinly sliced potatoes with a little butter and salt and pepper popped into the oven and baked go well with a duck dish, but not with sole," Ann said. "There are many different ways to do exciting and delicious combinations."

Paola makes all of the exotic and nourishing breads that are sold in the front of the restaurant. "I knead them all by hand, and this is unusual in these days of automatic kneaders," Paola explained.

"Kneading dough by hand gives the bread a unique taste and texture, and it is very much like meditation," Ann said.

Paola prefers baking cakes to pies because cakes allow her to use her artistic talent to decorate them. The desserts at Coco La Fleur are enough to warm the heart of anyone who has ever experienced the deep longings that having a sweet tooth implies.

For example, there's a dessert called Aphrodite on the Half Shell. It is a scalloped white chocolate shell filled with pomegranate sherbert and sprinkled with pomegranate seeds. "This is a light and simple dessert," Ann said, "and it is served with a flower and a delicate biscuit."

Paola Berthoin has returned her King Charles Spaniels to their "motor home" after a walk. Two of them share the spotlight with her.

A dessert called Coco La Fleur is a three tiered creation featuring a hand made chocolate cup filled with ice cream and topped with fresh fruits. For calorie counters, there's a fabulous grapefruit sherbert served with mint leaves.

Ann believes French cakes and desserts are not as sweet as American desserts. "They're richer, but there's less sugar in them," she said.

Other desserts on the menu are Turk's Turban and Summer Trifle. We couldn't bear to ask what the ingredients were!

Back to less tantalizing foods, all pasta served at Coco La Fleur is hand made from the finest semolina wheat. "If it is left over and someone warms it, it doesn't get soggy," Ann said.

Ann and Paola plan to continue doing business "the same way we are today." They will streamline the store a bit "so we can be here only fourteen hours a day instead of sixteen." They tease about the hours, but Paola doesn't really mind "because there are breaks during the day, sometimes for a couple of hours."

These breaks include caring for their six King Charles Spaniels whom they adore.

The furry friends stay in a specially prepared and furnished camper on the back of a truck that Ann and Paola purchased just for the dogs. Paola walks them frequently during the day, doing her best to keep their leashes from tangling as they roughhouse with each other.

There are three dogs of each sex, "all within some degree of kindred."

"We both go out to talk with them" Ann said, "and one loves to swim, so Paola takes him for a swim at one of the Quail Lodge lakes (across from Coco La Fleur)." Both agree that the dogs are a major part of their lives, going with them everywhere.

Ann and Paola look at cooking "from an aesthetic point of view. 'A meal has to be like a painting — well conceived and well executed,'" Ann said.

And at Coco La Fleur, Ann and Paola Berthoin are the incomparable artists of the finest cooking. Their work will never hang in the Louvre, but their marvelous creations will last forever in the memories of their clients.

Met Basso James Morris To Sing Here

James Morris, one of the youngest persons to sing starring bass roles with the Metropolitan Opera, will present a recital at the Sunset Center on Friday, November 13th, at 8 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Carmel Music Society.

Born in Baltimore, Morris began at the Met at the age of 23, the youngest male on the Metropolitan Opera roster. He has since starred there as Don Giovanni and Mozart's Figaro. He has sung opposite Luciano Pavarotti and Joan Sutherland and has performed with opera companies in Europe, North and South America, and with symphony orchestras in New York, Atlanta, and Chicago, and with the Soviet Emigre Orchestra in Carnegie Hall.

On November 13th, James Morris will sing several arias by Handel, Verdi, and Mozart, and songs by Richard Strauss, Jacques Ibert, and J. Duke. The Duke songs are based on poems from "Spoon River Anthology" by Edwin Arlington Robinson.

Performing with Morris will be Richard Foster, pianist, who has been vocal coach and accompanist for Licia Albanese, Eleanor Steber, Sherrill Milnes, Renata Scott and, for several years, James Morris.

Advance tickets for the event will be available at Center Stage Ticketing, Monterey, and at the Do Re Mi Music shop in The Barnyard. Seats will also be available at the box office on the evening of the performance. All seats are $12.

For further information, call 625-9938.

Harp Recital Series Set At Hidden Valley

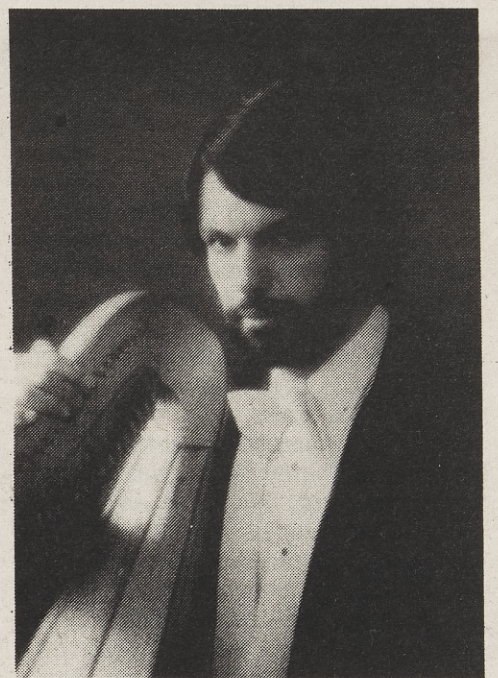

Hidden Valley will present a harp recital series, November 25-28 as part of the Ninth Annual Susann McDonald Harp Master Class.

Kerstin Allvin of Detroit and Jung Wha Lee of Seoul, Korea, will give a duo-recital on Wednesday, November 25 at 7:30 p.m. in Carmel Mission Basilica. Miss Allvin has been a guest soloist with the Detroit Symphony and has a masters in harp performance from the University of Michigan. She represented Indiana University as an undergraduate in a solo performance at Carnegie Hall. Miss Lee is now a student at Curtis Institute where she has appeared in recital.

During her undergraduate years at Indiana University, she was a winner of its harp competition. Allvin and Lee will enter the Tenth International Harp Competition in Israel in 1988.

Dan Levitan will include "Fantasie for Harp" by Spohr, and "Theme and Variations" by Paganini in a Thursday, November 26 recital at 7:30 p.m. in Hidden Valley Theatre. Levitan, a graduate of Temple University, is principal harpist of the San Jose and Marin Symphonies, and was also a finalist in the Los Angeles Philharmonic's auditions for principal harpist.

Vanessa Gong of Taiwan and Jung Kwak of Korea will appear in recital on Friday, November 27, at 7:30 p.m. in Hidden Valley Theatre. Both are teens in Indiana University's Pre-College Harp Program. They were soloists last summer in the

"Focus on Youth" program at the World Harp Congress in Vienna, Austria.

These players will be invited to join other harp master class participants in a class recital on Saturday, November 28 at 7:30 p.m. in Hidden Valley Theatre. Tickets to the class recital will be available at the door at $8 per person. Admission is free to the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday recitals.

noxious," but that fully visible security lights "are obnoxious."

Lights at Kasey's, the Community Center, Bank of America, and the "thirteen very bright flood lights at the Pizza Parlor" were discussed at length, with Jack Arnold suggesting enforcement of standards, and others suggesting persuasion as the best method of reaching compliance by those businesses who already have what will eventually become non-conforming security lights.

Following a suggestion that such lights be eliminated, Committee member Debra Saxton remarked, "We cannot say that a business must not have security lights. We can say that if these lights go up, they must be this type."

Again, Arnold questioned the intensity of security lights. The present ordinance requires a GE TC100 70 watt sodium vapor bulb tucked into a canopy.

When it was suggested that security lights were not really necessary because most burglaries took place during the day, Randy Randazzo took issue sharply.

"Most robberies have not occurred during daylight hours in business areas," he said. "They turned out my outside security lamp. When they are in darkness, they do mischief."

"As a businessman," Randazzo continued, "I will not allow the omission of security lamps...they do reduce crime."

At the conclusion of the discussion, the Committee recommended that lights attached to the building "shall be under the eaves of that building or hooded and shining down." It further recommended that lights away from a building "shall be of the type accepted by the Board of Supervisors and recommended by the ordinance currently in effect."

Street Lighting

The height of street lights, their placement, the number of lights per area, etc., were discussed at length, with Peter Coakley saying that the tapered, double-crossed arm poles with the canopied and windowed hanging lamp were the most attractive. "You can see these now in the Village," Coakley said, calling attention to those at the bakery and in front of the Allaire Building.

The light at the Allaire Building is 17 1/2 feet above ground, Coakley said, adding that the reasons for such a height include "PG&E's suggestion that this height avoids vandalism," and that "the lamps also must comply with State law."

Coakley made note of the fact that, four years ago, the community "was not in favor of a street lighting district." He said he didn't know if the sentiment would be any different today.

Putting a limit on the number of street lights per business was suggested, however, Debra Saxton said "if we put a specific limit, we are setting up a situation where each business is going to want the maximum it can have."

Ruth Pryer and Jackie Marks questioned the spacing of street lights; however, some of the Committee suggested that the "stub outs" (tubes) put underground by PG&E would limit the number of lights because "the closer a pole is placed to the stub out, the less costly the light will be."

Roger Williams said that 23 stub outs were presently in place, and that a merchant "has to pay for the distance of the lamp from the tube. To avoid expense, most merchants would place the lights close to the tube, so that the spacing would be decided by the configuration of business locations," Williams said. He also noted that PG&E installed the stub outs "with the thought in mind that they were in the best location for existing buildings."

Approaching businesses with offending lights was discussed, with the Committee members agreeing that friendly persuasion would prove to be the most effective method. Randazzo suggested sending a letter, but Saxton said, "I'd be upset with a letter; I'd rather someone talked to me." Coakley suggested that perhaps the Upper

Carmel Valley Advisory Committee should "have the authority to approve future pole lamps," but Saxton disagreed saying, "If I had to go through one more person or committee, I'd have a hard time accepting that."

It was agreed that the Village Improvement Committee would "take on the project" of contacting existing businesses and asking them to "tone down" their lighting.

A building's distance from a stub out bothered Ruth Pryer. "How can Bank of America, for example, put up approved lights when the stub out is so far away from their building?" she asked.

The Committee agreed to find out what State standards for street lighting are and whether or not they must be implemented in the Village. The Committee also agreed that when a uniform street lighting plan is appropriate for the Village, the accepted standard fixtures and poles will be installed. Existing physical connections located in the undergrounding area will be utilized whenever feasible.

According to Russell Lambert, who represented the Monterey County Planning Department at the meeting, a Uniform Lighting District will be voted upon at some future time.

The Carmel Valley Village Master Plan Committee will hold a workshop meeting on November 9 to consider suggestions and recommendations made at the November 3 meeting. There is no public input at workshop meetings.

Helping Stray Dogs And Cats

In all kinds of weather, life for stray animals is terrible, but cold weather is the worst.

If you have seen a stray dog or cat, have you wondered what you can or should do? Here are some tips from The Monterey County SPCA and Humane Society:

1. Be certain that the animal really is a homeless stray. If it is shabby, thin, and has no collar, it probably has no owner.
2. If you are able to bring the animal to The MCSPCA Shelter, you will prevent continued suffering of the animal.
3. If you cannot bring the stray into the shelter, try to confine the animal in your garage or on your porch and call The MCSPCA and report the situation to them.
4. If the animal has a collar and tag, check it carefully. It may have the owner's address or telephone number. Call the owners to tell them you found their pet. License and rabies tags, although they do not have the owner's name, are traceable by their serial numbers.

There will be times that you cannot confine the animals. Please call your local animal control agency or The MCSPCA to report where you last saw the animal and give them as much of a description as you can.

Continue to report stray animals in your area. These animals need your help! Allowing them to remain in your area provided only with food from misguided citizens but denied proper shelter, companionship, and medical care, is not kindness; it not only prolongs the suffering of that animal, but also paves the way for future suffering for the offspring it will undoubtedly produce. As a caring and responsible citizen, you can be proud that you are helping to reduce animal suffering by helping stray animals.

Keep Safety in Mind This Holiday Season

With all the holiday festivities that take place this time of year, safety is increasingly important, reminds the Safety Council of San Francisco/San Mateo Counties. Traveling to visit loved ones, decorations, gift giving, and feast cooking all require safety precautions.

To help keep your holidays safe and healthy, the Safety Council offers the following tips:

- Traffic tends to be heavier as people drive to visit friends and relatives. Drive defensively and keep alert for changing or dangerous road conditions.
- If drinking alcohol is part of your seasonal merrymaking, designate a nondrinker to do the driving.
- Be alert for hazards in the kitchen when preparing holiday meals. Children should be kept away from ovens and stovetops, and pot handles should be turned in so children cannot reach them. Wipe up spills immediately so no one slips and falls.

- If you have company for the holidays, leave a light on at night so they do not trip over or collide with unfamiliar objects. If children are staying in your home, make sure poisonous substances are locked up.

- For small children, choose toys that have no sharp edges or pieces small enough to be swallowed.

- Select a fresh Christmas tree, position it away from heat sources, and keep the stand filled with water. Turn off indoor and outdoor decorative lights before going to bed.

Handicapped Activities Unlimited and the Cherry Foundation will host

Art By Special People

To individuals with physical, mental and emotional disabilities, art is a motivational force that allows freedom of expression and greater communication with the non-handicapped world.

Handicapped Activities Unlimited has a long history of organizing art exhibitions of work by handicapped individuals, offering a show yearly since 1973. These exhibitions include art work in various mediums, including oil and water color, acrylics, sculptures and photography.

The Cherry Foundation will host Art By Special People through November 28. Exhibit hours: Saturdays and Wednesdays 2 to 4:40 p.m. or by appointment. For further information call 375-0800.

Parenting Class Scheduled

A Parenting Class will be offered by Ron Copley, a School Counselor at Tularcitos and River Schools. The meetings will be on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on November 18, December 2, 9 and 16.

If you are interested in attending these classes, please call the school office. 659-2276.

Hidden Valley

McGowan acknowledged that Hidden Valley is far behind in payment of staff salaries and current expenses. David Moulaison, who recently resigned as finance director, told the Sun he is owed $30,000 in back pay. Moulaison said, "Hidden Valley is making patrons of the arts out of unsuspecting creditors, and this is not right. The trustees who resigned know the realities. The out-of-town trustees don't know what is going on."

The soul-searching by those who support Hidden Valley is well-illustrated by Beata LaGarde, who recently resigned as a trustee after supporting the institute with her time, energy and money for thirteen years.

According to LaGarde, "Hidden Valley is Meckel's creation. It's his baby. It's a sound idea, and many wonderful things have come of it. But he cannot manage the money and will not give up leadership of the institution he created."

LaGarde believes Meckel "has great vision. His eyes are always fixed on the farther hills, but he does not see what's happening on the ground in front of him."

In summing up after an interview with the Sun, LaGarde said, "Hidden Valley as an institution is invaluable. I would do everything possible to help it continue, but we seem to have reached the end of the line."

McGowan believes there is still support in the community for Hidden Valley if only there were confidence in the management. "With good management, there would be no problem getting out of debt. The donors are there, waiting for the management problem to be resolved," McGowan said.

Meckel formed Hidden Valley in Los Angeles in 1963 as a summer seminar for music students. He moved it to the Monterey Peninsula in 1969 and to its present Carmel Valley location in 1972.

Asked to comment on the current leadership turmoil and charges of financial mismanagement, Peter Meckel told the Sun that Hidden Valley "is no different from many arts and education organizations. It struggles a great deal to stay alive and to make the contribution it does to young artists."

Financial management has been in the hands of a finance committee of the board of trustees and a finance director, Meckel said. Regarding employees not being paid, he said he is the employee who is owed the largest amount of money.

Meckel expects the recent resignations to "solidify and unify the board," from which will emerge "a concise statement of Hidden Valley's mission and major steps in the financial area."

"It has been a painful process," Meckel said, "but the result will allow us to refocus our programs and purposes. By doing that, the foundations and contributors will be drawn to support us."

Cachagua Plan

New residential development is to be concentrated in areas already committed to some degree to residential use. Clustered development is encouraged in all areas where development is permitted. Clustered residential development will be permitted on land zoned for permanent grazing when this would help to preserve the bulk of these lands for agricultural, cattle or other open space uses.

Water was an issue of considerable concern to the committee. There are policies intended to protect existing well owners from actions by others which would draw down the water table and cause them to lose their wells.

The advisory committee consisted of Chairwoman Charity Crane, Lupe Alonzo, Jean Cahoon, James Kachler, Diana Freitas, Kathy Kepford and David Ostrander. Joel Panzer was the county planner who worked with the committee.

Panzer is now writing an environmental impact report for the plan. The area plan and EIR are scheduled to be received by the Board of Supervisors and referred to the Planning Commission in late December. The first formal public hearing before the Planning Commission will probably be in February.

The Cachagua Area Plan will eventually be adopted by the supervisors as an amendment to the Monterey County General Plan. After adoption, it will then be implemented through new zoning and subdivision regulations.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

Courtesy Joyce E. Ward, Financial Consultant, Shearson Lehman Brothers

Capitalizing on Wall Street's Brain Power

If you read business magazines and the financial pages of your newspaper, you've probably seen many quotes on the economic outlook, interest rates and the stock market from top economists and investment managers at the nation's biggest brokerage houses. If you have an account at one of these full-service firms, you may have wondered whether and how you benefit from the expertise of these very senior people.

The fact is that the individual investor profits from the presence of these experts every day. To start with, many of the newer financial and investment products (e.g., home-equity loans, central asset accounts, index options) were created by these individuals. Indeed, the great expansion of investment opportunities in the form of "packaged" products like mutual funds and unit trusts is attributable in large part to the efforts of innovators at major brokerage firms.

You also benefit from your firm's best "thinkers" every time your Financial Consultant gives you a buy, sell or hold recommendation or suggests that you change your investment mix because of changing economic trends. The major brokerage firms commit substantial resources to economic and securities research, which is freely available to all their customers — not just those who trade actively or maintain large portfolios.

Some firms go beyond recommending individual stocks, bonds and other investments by providing their customers a periodically updated "model portfolio" constructed by their top investment strategists. This model suggests the proportions of a portfolio that should be devoted to stocks, bonds, cash (i.e., money-market funds), precious metals and so on. Working with your Financial Consultant, you can fine-tune your own portfolio by following the model—even if you don't own individual stocks and bonds. You can, for example, buy equity and bond mutual funds in the same proportions as are recommended for stocks and bonds.

A more direct way you can tap your brokerage firm's best minds is to open an asset management account. You put a substantial sum into this type of account ($50,000 is typical), and in return you get a portfolio custom-designed for you and managed by a highly regarded portfolio strategist.

Many firms publish newsletters or bulletins that distill their top executives' current thinking and translate it into specific financial strategies and recommendations. In many cases, this is information you simply cannot get elsewhere so you should be sure to ask your Financial Consultant to put you on his mailing list. The treasure of information available to you may include not only a recount of the changes in the marketplace or an analysis of the current investing environment and the prognosis for the future, but also an update on a particular company, sector or product group.

So no matter how large or small your investment portfolio, you are capitalizing on Wall Street's brain power every day. Your Financial Consultant acts as your link to your brokerage firm's experts and vast information resources, in addition to helping you to find the best investments to fit your objectives.

College of Law and IRS Team For Seminar

Monterey College of Law will hold a seminar subtitled "Tax Laws Changes That Affect Most Americans" on Wednesday, November 18 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The seminar will be in Monterey.

The seminar will be taught by Robert L. Rible of the Santa Cruz office of the Internal Revenue Service. Rible has been an Internal Revenue Agent for the past nine years and prior to that time, was a research associate at the Institute for Antiquity and Christianity in Claremont.

There is no fee for the program. Reservations are required and may be made by phoning the college at 373-3301.

Bill Muffet said his car couldn't skid. This monument shows that it could—and did.

Heart Association Grant Applicants

In an effort to attract outstanding college students into medical research as a future career, the American Heart Association offers student research grants. Any undergraduate student who wishes to apply should contact the American Heart Association Central Mission Trails Chapter, 76 Stephanie Drive, Salinas, CA. 93901. The deadline for requesting applications is December 15, 1987.

"We are proud of this unique project," stated Jim Egan, M.D., from Salinas who serves on the California Affiliate research committee. "It offers undergraduates the opportunity to work side-by-side with well-known medical scientists during the summer months."

Last year, 79 California students each received a $1,500 grant for a ten-week program. The local Central Mission Trails Chapter sponsored three students.

Funds for this program come directly from the donations made by the public to the American Heart Association, Dr. Egan noted.

Avoid Feeding Your Pet Thanksgiving Dinner

With special Thanksgiving dinners being prepared for November 26, The Monterey County SPCA reminds pet owners to be cautious in overfeeding animals during this time of the year. No matter how cute the begging, resist the temptation to indulge your pet with holiday goodies. A sudden change in diet can cause intestinal problems that both you and your pet will regret.

Above all, make Thanksgiving a safe and happy day for everyone, including the family pet, by remembering that turkey bones can splinter and pierce your pet's internal organs, causing serious damage or even death. Don't endanger your pet's life by giving him or her turkey bones. You may indulge in the overeating, but let your pet continue his or her daily eating routine. You'll both be the happier for it.

YMCA Soccer Going Strong

The YMCA Youth Soccer League has reached the mid-point in its 1987 season, and from all reports, the quality and enthusiasm of play is the highest it has ever been.

Over 300 youngsters from Carmel, Carmel Valley, and Monterey are participating in this year's league. Teams are spread throughout three divisions, with children in grades kindergarten through eighth grade competing.

The philosophy of YMCA youth soccer is to stress participation and fun. All players receive a chance to play and learn the fundamentals of the game, and the emphasis on winning and losing is not the most important thing.

Coaches are all volunteers from the community who put in from two to ten hours a week working with the kids. Local businesses do their part by sponsoring individual teams.

Games are held on Saturday mornings at the Carmel Middle School fields. To enjoy some fine soccer action, stop by any Saturday and cheer the kids on. Look for detailed updates on team and individual advancements in the next few weeks.

Chilean Group To Perform

Amnesty International will present an afternoon of music, drama, and art from Chile. Also featured will be Michelle Ritterman, Ph.D., author of a work in progress entitled Chilean Families Under Siege. Ms. Ritterman recently returned from a visit to Chile, and will be speaking on the current human rights situation in that country.

The Chilean Children's Theatre Group from San Jose will perform a dance/dramatization of their unique situation as exiles from a child's point of view, accompanied by Chilean folk music. Chilean crafts will be displayed, and wine and cheese will be served.

There is no admission fee for the event which will take place on Saturday, November 14, Unitarian Church, Carmel, 3 to 5 p.m. For details, call 646-8352.

Special Olympics Seeks Coaches

In order to meet the needs of its rapidly expanding program, Monterey County Special Olympics (MCSO) is seeking volunteer coaches and assistant coaches for the sports of basketball, volleyball, soccer, track and field, and softball.

MCSO will provide training as well as sports manuals and training plans for interested individuals.

MCSO conducts a year-round program of athletic training and sports competition for about 300 mentally retarded persons, ages 8 and up, throughout Monterey County.

To coach or for information, call 373-1972.

Youth Basketball Registration Scheduled

YMCA Youth Basketball is now accepting registration for its 1988 winter league. Children in grades 3 through 8 are eligible to participate.

Fee for the league is $35, which includes a uniform and team photo.

Play begins in January with all games at Carmel Middle School. Parents may register in person at the YMCA in Monterey, or mail in registration forms to P.O. Box 1268, Monterey, CA 93942.

Registration runs through December 31. No late registrations will be accepted, so register early, as space is limited.

For more information, call 373-4167.

Open-Gym Sports Begin

Carmel Valley basketball and volleyball enthusiasts are invited to attend the open-gym sports program sponsored by the City of Carmel. The Recreation Department holds basketball and volleyball twice weekly at the Carmel Middle School.

Both programs are run on a drop-in basis with a $1 door charge per person. On Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 7 — 9 p.m., volleyball is scheduled with beginners on Mondays and advanced players on Wednesdays. Drills and basic instruction are provided along with game play.

For further information, please call 626-1255.

Volunteers are needed on an on-going basis as: Adoption Counselors, Educational Guides, Wildlife Assistants, Junior Volunteers (minimum age, 14 years), Clinic Assistants, Benefit Shop Representatives, Clerical Assistants, Pet Therapists. Additional training is provided by the specific department where the volunteer works.

For information call Monterey County SPCA at 373-2631.

Local Woman To Discuss Needy In Baja

On Wednesday, November 18th at the C.V. Community Chapel, Gabrielle Esperanza will speak about her October mission trip to Cabo San Lucas, on the southern tip of Baja, Mexico. While visiting there during the summer, she encountered a small community of impoverished families living on the outskirts of the quickly-growing tourist center of Cabo San Lucas. A person who often encourages grass-roots, people-to-people caring, Gabrielle met with The Rev. Anne Swallow, Pastor at the CV Community Chapel, to see what the church might do to help. In response to their combined appeal, the Community Chapel members contributed blankets, children's clothing, and shoes, along with travel fare and the loan of a camera with slide film for Gabrielle to take to this community. Other Carmel Valley residents helped, giving Gabrielle a total of six huge boxes to deliver. She has returned with poignant and compelling stories, especially of children and elderly people in great need.

After a potluck supper, Gabrielle will show slides, talk about her work, and describe what else might be done to help these people. The public is invited; please bring a main dish, salad or dessert to share, and your own table setting. Supper begins at 6:15 p.m. in Fellowship Hall and Gabrielle will begin her talk at 7:15

Academy Award Winner To Address New Forum

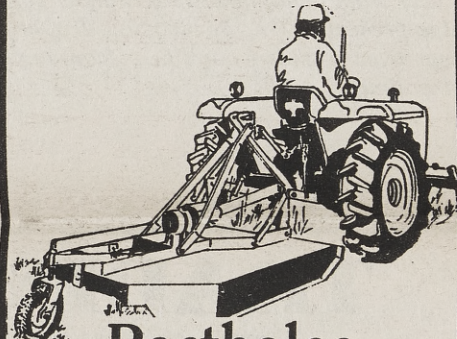

Vivienne Verdon-Roe will speak at The New Forum's monthly luncheon on Monday, November 16, at 12 noon at the Lodge at Pebble Beach.

Verdon-Roe received an Oscar for 1987's Best Documentary Short Subject titled Women For America — For The World. In 1982, after seeing The Last Epidemic, a film on the medical consequences of nuclear war, Verdon-Roe wondered if children worried about nuclear war as much as adults did. Using a questionnaire developed by a Harvard University psychologist, she interviewed children at playgrounds and schools. The results were published in East-West Journal.

Reservations for Vivienne Verdon-Roe's lecture, Activists For America — For The World, and the luncheon are $13 and must be made in advance. For information and/or reservations, call 625-9967.
